City & citizens group make deal: ballot threat tabled

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

After reaching a deal with city officials, proponents of a growth-limiting ballot initiative have put their initiative on hold.

With a unanimous vote, last week, the West Sacramento City Council approved a resolution putting its development priorities "in writing." In return, members of the "Save Our City" citizens group have ceased collecting signatures that would have put their "Sustainable Growth Initiative" on the ballot. The ballot measure, if voted on and passed by voters, would have capped the number of future "rooftops" in the city's southern half to 16,109 – the number originally foreseen in the city's Southport Framework Plan. The initiative would have required that any construction above and beyond that number of homes be subject to a direct vote at the city ballot.

ACTIVIST DANI LANGFORD

"We had more signatures than we needed," said one "Save Our City" organizer, Dani Langford. "I am guardedly optimistic (about the deal). I don't want them to renege on anything they agreed on."

In February, Langford joined fellow "Save Our City" members Joe Meier, Marghe Covino and Irene Eklund in delivering the text of their initiative to city hall. It was processed, and the group was turned loose gathering signatures to qualify the initiative for the ballot. It would have required an estimated 1,700 valid signatures if it had been submitted for ballot consideration.

But the deal with the city council halted the process.

"Part of what was motivating the initiative proponents was uncertainty," said Mayor Christopher Cabaldon, one of the five votes in favor of the city council resolution. "We had five significant new development projects come forward at the same time, and there was anxiety on the part of a lot of people in the community. What the resolution does is lay out the amount of development process and priorities, including environmental protection, impacts on congestion and all our other key priorities. It makes it clear what those standards are."

The new city policy statement will "provide greater transparency and predictability to the review process (for the proposed developments) without the necessity of the... initiative," said a city staff report accompanying the resolution. The resolution itself promises that new projects will be judged against a value system influenced by community members at public workshops in 2005. The priorities will "favor" major Southport projects that are consistent with current city plans, minimize negative impacts, promote Southport as a system of "villages," help pay for roads and public services, and maintain rural or open-space buffers between villages.

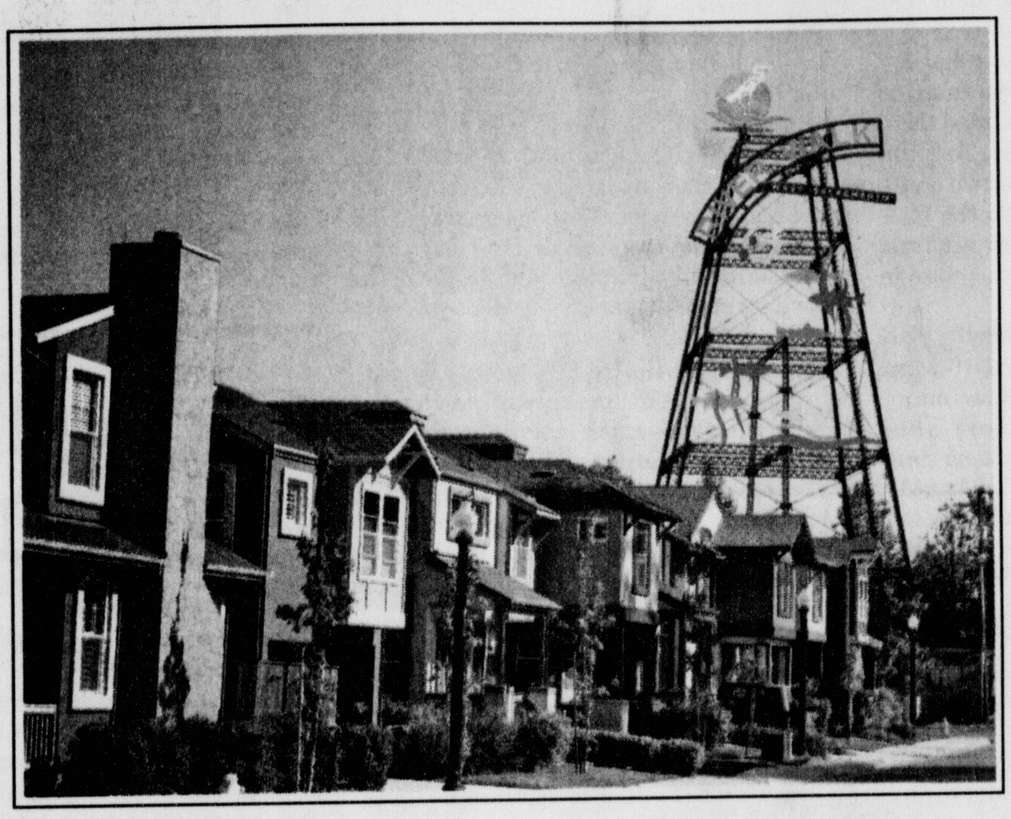

The resolution also includes a city pledge not to grant permits for more construction than city streets can handle. Every approval of a major project is to include documentation compliance with these policies.

"It's a clear statement about how we are going to be reviewing these projects over the coming months," said Mayor Cabaldon. "No one is giving up anything. This was an outcome in which the city as a whole what our standards are, and builders and developers have had it made clear that they're going to be held to higher standards. The initiative's proponents achieved their objectives. It doesn't mean that 'Save Our City' is going to go away, or there won't continue to be lively discussions over projects. Part of what makes our city efficient and a great place to live is these lively disagreements."

Langford agreed that she and her fellow activists won't get complacent.

"I think it is important that the city listen to the community and not the developers," she opined. "The people I've talked to intend (to stay involved). I don't think you give up being a watchdog once you've started."

More winners

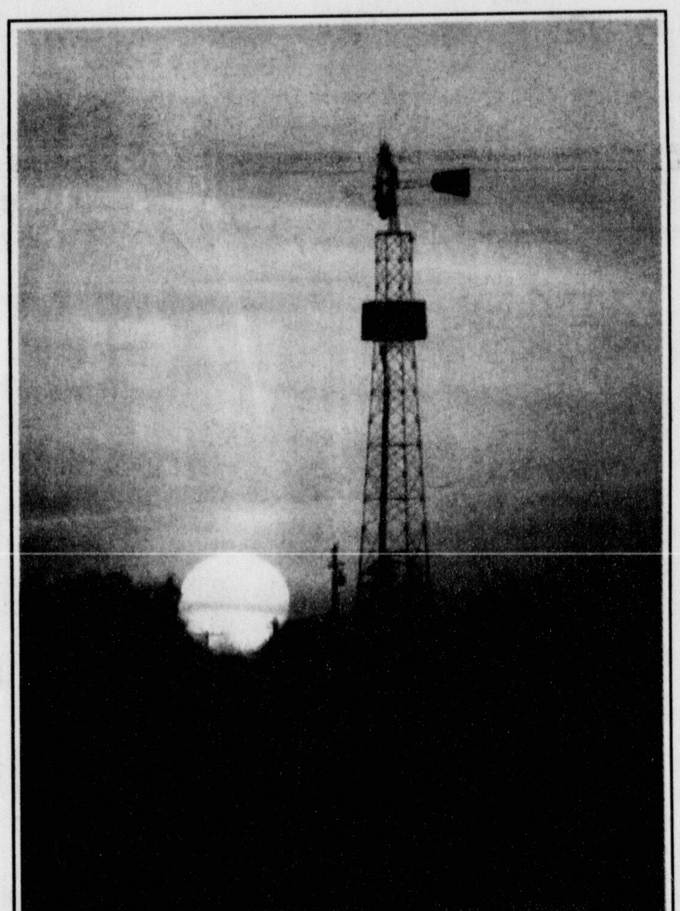

LAST WEEK, you saw a couple of the winners of this year's "15 Days in May" photo contest, sponsored by the City of West Sacramento (and of which the News-Ledger is a co-sponsor).

Here are a couple more:

RIGHT: one of West Sacramento's lovely sunsets helped Patricia Riggs and her camera garner a third-place award among residents over age 55.

Hundreds of entries were received. You can see more of the winners in your "City Lights" mailing, or at the city website, www.cityofwestsacramento.org

Principal Geivett

Former River City High School principal Mort Geivett has been made the "official" principal at the city's alternative high School, Yolo High. This follows a year he spent at Yolo High as a principal "at large" in the district. And that followed his removal last summer from his post at River City High. The transfer provoked anger from scores of West Sacramento residents.

Geivett could not be reached for comment yesterday.

The appointment as official principal at Yolo came after a school board meeting last week.

Earlier this month, Geivett and the Yolo High staff learned they had regained accreditation for the alternative school, which had lost its accreditation shortly before Geivett took the helm.

Vote on SMUD

West Sacramento's city council last week took the "ministerial" action of placing a vote on the city's electrical service on the November ballot.

This city, as well as other cities in Yolo County, and the county itself, will vote on the issue of whether to drop Pacific Gas & Electric Company as the local electricity provider. The service would instead be taken over by the Sacramento Municipal Utility District, or SMUD.

Unlike PG&E, which is a shareholder-owned company, SMUD is owned by its customers. The West Sacramento City Council and other Yolo County governments have already approved the move to SMUD, believing it will bring them lower electric rates. PG&E has lobbied against the switch, claiming that studies have underestimated the costs of switching providers and overestimated rate savings.

High school diplomas --- at last

Dr. Ronda Adams, Minoru Ohye and John Caldeira of West Sacramento, and Dr. Jorge Ayala, who is the superintendent of education in Yolo County

From the County of Yolo

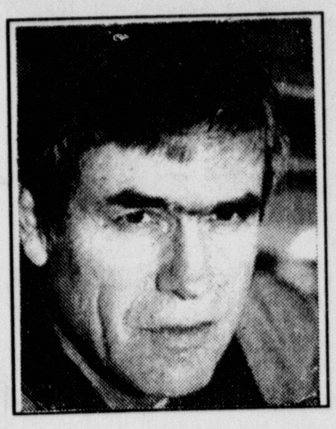

The Yolo County Office of Education Student and Family Services Department celebrated Operation Recognition on Tuesday, June 6, 2006 in the Davis Conference room at the Yolo County Office of Education Conference Center.

During the 1940s and 1950s, thousands of young men and women left high school and the comforts of home to serve in the United States armed forces. Additionally, during World War II, thousands of Japanese American citizens were interned in relocation camps in various locations in the United States. After these wars, many veterans were not able to finish high school and receive a high school diploma. Nevertheless, these veterans and citizens lead productive lives and contributed to our communities over their lifetimes. Senate Bill 1517 authorized a local educational agency to provide for retroactive granting of a high school diploma to a former student who is a veteran of World War II, the Korean War, or the Vietnam War. In 2003, Assembly Bill 781 was passed allowing the issuance of retroactive high school diplomas for Japanese American citizens who were unable to complete their high school education due to their internment during World War II.

The Yolo County Office of Education was once again honored and proud to be able to award an honorary high school diploma to World War II veterans, Korean War veterans, Vietnam War veterans and to Japanese American citizens who were interned during World War II. Family, friends and community members were present on Tuesday evening to see Dr. Jorge

Why have a reunion in the middle of a desert?

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

As I have mentioned in the past, I am not a very big fan of organized reunions of any kind, the main reason being that it seems to me that life should always be lived looking forward, not backwards. In fact, I usually have to be dragged kicking and screaming to the darn things, especially those god-awful high school reunions, where you have to stand around with people you never liked all that much to begin with and pretend that those were the best years of your life. But there is always an exception to every rule, and that turned out to be the case this past week in Phoenix, Arizona, where for the first time I attended one of the annual reunions of the Aero Rifle Platoon I served with in Vietnam.

Since I was already going to be in Southern California for most of last week anyway, and since Phoenix looked on the map like it was only about a five-hour drive or so from where I was staying, I made myself a one-night reservation at the hotel where the 4-day reunion was being held and early last Friday morning hopped in my truck and headed east, determined to finally slap a few old Vietnam War demons around.

Now, for those of you who have never headed from Los Angles into the 115-degree summer desert heat awaiting you in Phoenix, read these next few paragraphs very carefully. To begin with, it will take you at least a good two hours just to clear all the L.A. traffic, so the five-hour trip is actually more like seven hours, and that is if all goes well, which of course in my case wasn't meant to be.

My first real problem was mistakenly putting faith in all those signs along I-10 from L.A. to Phoenix telling you just how many more miles you have to go before there is another gas station, because when it came time for me to fill the tank up again (after having painstakingly calculated exactly when I needed to stop), a Gomer Pyle look-alike mechanic strolled out to my truck and said with a friendly shazam smile, "Sorry, we're all out of gas, although we're expectin' another delivery shortly."

"How shortly?" I asked with alarm.

"Oh, I'd say about an hour or two most likely," came the answer, "but it could be three or four, or five or six. You just never really know way out here in the desert."

"So how far is the next gas station?" I asked with growing concern.

"Well, now that would be exactly 42-miles as the crow flies."

"But I'm down to an eighth of a tank or less," I explained. "What do you think? Can I make another 42-miles on an eighth of a tank?"

"Well," said Gomer as politely as he could, "to tell you the truth, I'm really not allowed to make those kind of predictions anymore cause the last guy I told what to do didn't quite make it and ended up going loco in the heat waiting for help."

So, not wanting to show up loco at my reunion, I decided to just calmly drive the 20 or so miles all the way back to the last gas station I had seen, but believe me, there is nothing more annoying than driving away from your destination in the middle of a hot desert knowing you're just retracing steps you've already taken!

With my tank finally full again, and with lots of time to make up, I sped off and hooked up with three or four other vehicles who were doing close to 90-miles an hour, which actually seemed reasonable on such a straight road out in the middle of nowhere. Then, just when I was starting to believe I would get to the reunion sometime before it ended, I glanced in my rearview mirror only to see the unmistakable flashing lights of a police car rapidly closing on my rear bumper. Now, most of the time I am actually pretty good at spotting highway police vehicles long before they are on top of me, but the rules are all different in Arizona. To begin with, the police cars are white instead of black and they really blend in with all the other vehicles on the road. Plus Arizona highway patrolmen have apparently made a little art form out of hiding on the side of the freeway behind tons of sage brush and tumble weeds and big old cactus trees. Then, when you speed by them, they leap out of their hiding place as if they are Black Bart himself going after a stagecoach loaded with gold.

So, as the flashing lights got closer and closer, I found myself doing some more calculating, this time wondering just how much modern-day gold it was going to cost me to get caught in Arizona driving 90 when I was supposed to be doing 70. Although an exact figure didn't pop into my mind, I knew for a fact it was going to at least double my little vacation budget.

Then, just when I was preparing to pull over to the side of the freeway and take my medicine, the flashing lights suddenly flew right past me as the police car roared off after the leader of the pack. So I quickly slowed down to below 70 m.p.h. and even put on my safety belt. And although the emotional damage had already been done (racing heartbeat, the thought of my car insurance premiums going through the roof, etc.), I did find myself smiling just a bit to myself as I slowly motored past Black Bart and his latest victim.

A few miles down the road, convinced that the worst of my trip had to be finally behind me, I took a few deep breaths and began to relax, only to suddenly realize that all the cars in front of me were beginning to dramatically slow down -- and then they just came to a complete stop.

"How do these things manage to happen to you, Daryl?" I mumbled to myself. I mean, you are somehow now sitting in non-moving traffic in the middle of a great American desert with the sun beating down mercilessly. You just finished the last of the bottled water and if you step out of the car and go try to find out what the problem is, you'll probably go loco.

A good thirty minutes later Black Bart finally showed up on the scene and began to move us along, one car at a time. A few agonizingly slow miles later, the problem became obvious. A school bus of all things (thankfully with all the teenage passengers safe and standing alongside the road smiling and waving at those of us crawling past them) had apparently decided to stop in the middle of I-10 and burn itself to the ground, which, to tell you the truth, most of the kids seemed to be quite happy about.

Anyway, I finally did make it to my reunion, and I'm the last person who would want to discourage anyone from visiting the beautiful California/Arizona desert. It really is a very unique place. I mean, where else can you find a huge stretch of road dedicated to the memory of Sonny Bono? And a General George Patton museum in the middle of nowhere complete with a dozen or so old rusted-out WWII tanks? And Gomer Pyle, still alive and well and friendly as ever? And my personal favorite, a huge sign on the side of the road just outside of Blythe that reads, "State Prison 3 miles -- Do not pick up hitch-hikers."

Next week -- Part II -- the reunion.

Giving the gift of words: Rotary donates dictionaries

By Clayton Blakley
Rotary International

Local 4th graders at Alyce Norman Elementary and Clarksburg Elementary schools recently showed off their newly expanded vocabularies, thanks to a donation of more than 530 new dictionaries provided by the Rotary Club of West Sacramento.

The dictionaries, which the students are allowed to keep and take home, are filled with lots of full-color photos and graphics to ensure frequent use. Students who received the dictionaries practiced good manners and new word mastery with "thank you" letters to the Rotary Club of West Sacramento. Others demonstrated that the dictionaries were a sorely needed resource that arrived just in time (one student's letter concluded with "Thank you I rilly rilly inprishucate it"). Many noted that they were taking them home and sharing with their families, and that they were especially interested in the colorful portrayal of U.S. presidents, our solar system, world maps and geometric shapes.

"Seeing the excitement of the kids when they received their dictionaries and knowing that small contributions like this can make such a big difference in their futures just reminds me how service clubs like Rotary are so vital to our community," said Barry Kalar, a Rotary member for 22 years who helped organize the project and hand-delivered many of the dictionaries personally.

The Rotary Club of West Sacramento emphasizes community service projects and provides support and scholarships to area students. For more information about the organization call 804-7623.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

By Richard Novoa

The World Cup is heading into the quarterfinals with all the tournament favorites still in the running but it's the referee's who are stealing the show! The United States, Tunisia, South Korea and now the Australian's were all victims of horrible calls. Don't get me wrong the USA played badly but the German referee who worked their game against Ghana should return to his full time profession as a dentist!

Our how about the sad decision the Spanish referee pulled in the Aussie's 1-0 loss to Italy. The Socceroos were just about to take the heavily favored Italians into overtime when the referee called a really questionable penalty kick with 12 seconds remaining in injury time! You know that hurt –"Down Under".

Also, the organizing body (FIFA) had to shut down their web site for a whole day to stop the flood of emails from the angry South Korean soccer fans, who were led to believe that if FIFA received 5 million emails disputing the horrible call, that led to their countries elimination from the World Cup, that the game would be replayed. Yeah, right!

The FIFA web master received 4.2 million emails over a six-hour span that overloaded their system and of course there is no such thing as re-playing a game especially at the request of disillusioned soccer fans. Is that what you call spam emails?

How about the game were the referee issued three yellow cards to the same player that allowed a Croatian player to continue to play when everyone is soccer knows that with two yellow cards in one game is an automatic ejection from the game and your team must continue play one man short! Lucky, the game ended in a tie and both teams advanced to the second round or we might have had a legitimate protest and then the game must be replayed!

Ask U.S. coach Bruce Arena, who played two men short in their 1-1 tie with Italy! That fiasco mixed in with poor field strategy will definitely cost Arena his job as the coach of the Red, White and Blue. Arena has done a great job of putting USA soccer on the world map and should be commended for his efforts and wisdom but after 8 long tough years, it's time for a change. Thank you – Bruce!

The plain fact and truth is that is players just let him down and didn't perform up to his or anybody's expectations! It was just a bad, bad exhibition of soccer. The United States will now have four years to regroup and make plans to win the 2010 World Cup in South Africa.

Anyway, enough crying over spilled milk let's talk about the great match ups coming up coming up on Friday between Germany and Argentina (8 a.m. PST). The winner of this game will win the World Cup. The Germans have been very impressive but I like the Argentina's chances to win the whole enchilada because of their experience playing qualify games against teams like Brazil.

In the other bracket Brazil will tackle England or Portugal. I still feel the Brazilian's are beatable and I'm counting on the Englishmen to reach the semi-finals to prove me right!

Kings Korner

The NBA draft is on Wednesday (4 p.m.-ESPN) and the Sacramento Kings are scheduled to pick 19th. The big question for Kings management is are they going to pick a power forward or a back up guard to fill in for a tired Mike Bibby? Jason Hart was signed last season as a back up but his play was mediocre at best.

Toronto has the No. 1 pick and rumors have them selecting 7-foot Italian forward Andrea Bargnani who is being compared to Dirk Nowitzki. Other names being tossed around are LaMarcus Aldridge, Tyrus Thomas and my favorite, Gonzaga shooting star, Adam Morrison.

Maybe with the international flavor of the World Cup in the air the Sacramento Kings might select another favorite of mine, guard Sergio Rodriquez of Spain. Ole!

Diamond Notes

The Oakland A's roughed up the San Francisco Giants pitchers this weekend winning 2 out 3 in the "Battle of the Bay". The A's (41-34), who are now the leader of the pack in the West, really tattooed the Giants pitchers this weekend, particularly Giants closer, Armando Benitez. Benitez is a couple of pitches from the DL list again or maybe from the free agent list.

With All-Star break just around the corner next week the Giants (37-38) are starting to panic a little bid so don't be surprised to see GM Sabean make some trades to his aging line-up. Bonds is limping again and first base Lance Niekro is a dud a first base. The Giants need some punch in the line to make a second half push in the weak NL West.

The G-Men are at home this week against the Texas Rangers and then head down south for a weekend series against their division rival San Diego. The A's continue to play good ball and will be in San Diego during the week before they return to Oakland to host Arizona over the weekend.

The River Cats (38-40) continue to struggle but it's not because of the weather or anything in particular but because of the parent team (A's) continuous recall of the Gatos players. The player shuffle now has Sacramento 11 games back of division leading Tucson (49-29), who have the best record in the PCL.

This week the A's send down Mark Ellis to visit his old friends at Raley Field to rehab is broken thumb and get some good swings in and Hiram Bocachica also returned to the River Cats line-up this week. The Cats also had to dig deep into their Double A team to promote Richard Robnett. He will fill in for outfielder, Doug Clark, who called up for a cup of coffee with the A's.

This week the River Cats are hosting the Giant's farm team, the Fresno Grizzlies, until Thursday night and then Salt Lake City will play at Raley Field over the warm weekend weather. Stay Cool!

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

We take care of everything when you can't think about anything.

We know what it's like not to be able to focus when a loved one dies. We know how hard it is to function. Especially when there's so much to do, so many decisions to make. If there's any comfort to be found, it's in knowing that every detail that needs to be taken care of will be. We know it's never easy, but we'll make it as easy as possible.

Jill Jackson's
HOLLYWOOD

Kelsey Grammer

HOLLYWOOD ... I always get a kick out of learning how "the other half" lives. Kelsey Grammer once bought a home in Beverly Hills (the posh part of Hollywood) for $17.5 million. He recently sold it for $25 million. Not a bad profit, eh? And get this. The house has seven bedrooms and 11 baths! Plus an elevator, a library, a media room, a gymnasium and seven fireplaces. Grammer and his wife, former model Camille Donatucci, now live in a manse above Malibu overlooking the ocean; I don't know what he paid for this one. I do know his first job was as a house painter, that his career is still going, and that he has served several jail sentences.

Halle Berry, Rebecca Romijn and Famke Janssen were knockouts at a Cannes Film Festival do. Rebecca in a yellowish-gold Gucci, Famke in a white Versace and Halle in a cream-colored Reem Acra that showed almost everything. ... While we're on the subject of style, "The Devil Wears Prada" by Lauren Weisberger (Vintage Books) has been made into a movie starring Meryl Streep and Anne Hathaway, and you should be seeing it on the screens along about now.

Adam Sandler is mulling "Jack and Jill" as his next project. No, not the one that says "Jack and Jill went up the hill" etc. etc. etc. That's the old nursery rhyme. This one is a comedy for Columbia Pics about twins, and the rest of the plot is being kept under wraps. Don't ask me why. If you remember, Sandler started out as a standup comedian, then went on to "Saturday Night Live" and a career on the big screen.

Aside to M.A. Román of Milwaukee. Thanks so much for your interest in the column, and your information. Perhaps I erred when I said The Catholic Church had banned "The Da Vinci Code." I had heard the Pope asked Catholics not see the film, and mistakenly took it for a ban. I do hope THIS is IT for the film version of Dan Brown's book.

Walks of life

Sue McGowan, age 58
Retired banker (married to Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan)

"I had a brain tumor and had a 50-50 chance of dying. After my surgery, they put me in a room. There was six of us in a ward where you had these godawful diseases, and you were going to die. I would wake up in the morning and one person would be dead and the bed would be empty.

"It got down to one other woman and me, and she was dying and she wouldn't eat. I would get up in the middle of the night and feed her, when her family was gone and she was all alone. She would eat for me. I was bound and determined to keep that woman alive, because if she went, I would go next. I just had too much to do yet.

"Well, she lived another three or four days and she did finally die, but I just remember that I felt there was no way I was going to let her die. I guess that's when I got the belief that I'm here for a purpose. Not that it makes me special."

"Walks of Life" is a new feature in the News-Ledger. We'll talk to people all over town, and ask them to tell us a story from their life.

VETERANS: local man fought for the Japanese, then for the U.S.

Ayala, County Superintendent of Schools and Dr. Ronda Adams, Associate Superintendent for Educational Services, present diplomas to the following veterans:

Minoru Ohye, from West Sacramento, has the unusual distinction of having served in both the army of Japan and the army of the United States. Minoru was born in Sacramento and was sent to Japan as an infant to live with his aunt. He was drafted into the Japanese army and fought against the Russians until he was captured and lived out the rest of the war in a prisoner of war camp. Upon being released after the war, Minoru returned to the United States where he settled in Yuba City, California. He joined the Army in 1953 and fought in the Korean War until 1955 in reconnaissance and as a scout. Minoru received the Korean Service Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Good Conduct Medal and the United Nations Service Medal.

John Caldeira, also from West Sacramento, served in the American Merchant Marine – Coast Guard during World War II. While in the Mediterranean Sea, John was on a ship that was hit by a torpedo and sank. The life boat to which John was assigned capsized and he was forced to jump into the sea. Luckily he was pulled to safety when the water rushed him past another life boat. John received the Honorable Service Button, Merchant Marine Emblem Bar, the Combat Bar, the Atlantic War Zone Bar, the Victory Medal Bar and the Mediterranean Sea Bar.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Working out their differences

It was the best solution:

The folks behind a potential ballot initiative agreed to take it off the table after getting some assurances that the community, and not developers, would come first as city officials weigh various growth proposals.

The initiative would have placed a rather hard cap on the number of new homes in Southport (the city's 7,000-acre southern half). This was a response to growth pains (a housing construction boom has just now softened) and to increased congestion and other issues as infrastructure has not quite managed to keep up. But the initiative would have had unintended consequences, possibly lowering the quality and amenities of anything that was built up to that "hard" limit.

So the initiative is back asleep, but West Sacramento officials have heard its roar loud and clear.

There remains a need for the average citizen to be on alert and make sure his (or her) voice is heard. You can bet that the big-money interests will continue to make their own voices heard.

In the meantime, West Sacramentans won't have to face a ballot initiative that features some of their neighbors and their flawed-but-well-intentioned proposal on one hand, and "big money" from the development community on the other. That would have been a tough one.

Did you see the little news item last week?

West Sacramento needed a little square footage along West Capitol Avenue for a road project. That square footage belonged to the "Dharma Realm" Buddhist monastery. So city officials offered, as is standard practice, to pay a fair rate for the land they wanted.

The religious society said "no."

But here's the kicker: it wasn't that the monastery was unhappy with the price, it's that they didn't feel they needed a price. They were happy to give up the land, for free, for the public good.

That, of course, isn't how things are usually done. Many landowners will take a "fair" price when their local government needs land for a road or a school. Plenty of other landowners, though, approach such a situation with dollar signs in their eyes -- and set about extracting the maximum possible dollar amount from the government (and the taxpayers).

Letters to the Editor

Quiet zones

If you live in the old part of West Sacramento all you hear day and night, seven days a week, is the horn on that blasted train!

But now the Federal Railroad Administration provides the opportunity for localities to establish quiet zones, which we could surely use as some of those operators tie the horn down and run through town.

Maybe we qualify for this and maybe not, but why don't the city look into this?

Advice on streetcars

Well, well. So SACOG, YCTD, the mayor of that glittering jewel of colossal self importance across the river (she of the fuzzy slippers) and our very own city fathers/mothers think it's time to reintroduce a nostalgic bit of transportation history. How quaint. Very practical actually, when done correctly, but quaint nonetheless. And quaint is one of two vital keys to the success of this novel idea of reinventing the wheeled form of transportation known as streetcars. The quaint part would be the form or shape of the cars. If they look like the streetcars from the heyday of real streetcars, the designs of the 1930's and 40's, then they'll have a cachet of nostalgic charm which will attract a good percentage of the tourist trade. If they look like good old government designed, practical boxes on wheels, they will not. They must, however, also have a practical reason for use as well. Otherwise, their usefulness (and their ridership) will be short lived and disappointing.

Every summer, when the historic streetcars are run up and down San Francisco's Market Street, they receive quite a bit of patronage, not just for their looks, but because they go somewhere as well. (Think tracks down West Capitol Avenue, branching off to...?) Lets put it this way: How many riders do you think San Francisco's cable cars would have if all they did was go from the city hall to the Greyhound bus station? It's that chance to ride a quaint, fun and historic form of transportation from say Powell and Market to where they can enjoy eggs benedict and a potent Irish coffee at the Buena Vista, cioppino at Alioto's or Little Joe's, or chocolate fondue at Ghirdelli's Wine Cellar, that provide the reason for both locals and tourists to make repeated use of one of their most beloved forms of public transportation.

YoloBus changes mostly good

Last week I indicated that the new bus service appeared to exclude any weekend service south of West Capitol Avenue. Due to an oversight, I was wrong. For the #38 YoloBus, rides are scheduled to begin southward from West Capitol Avenue at 6:45 and 7:45 a.m., M-F; 8:45, 9:45 11:45 a.m., and 1:40, 2:40, 3:40, 6:40 p.m., 7 days a week, and 7:40, 8:40, and 9:40 p.m. M-F.

Several surveys have been taken during recent months and the question was "How can we make the most effective use of the YoloBuses?" Again, the changes appear to be very positive overall, with one major exception. The #241, which serves the area's big postal distribution center, should be more responsive to the majority of those folks who do not work in that area only 8-5, M-F. Others, from employers to employees to those who believe in fuller employment for the area should contact YoloBus at www.yolobus.com.

Finally, before we let potential confusion disturb us, let's think about how exciting and how more effective it should be (overall).

Need a flag amendment

We have heard from opponents of the flag amendment that our troops fight for the rights of flag burners. Who among them would stand before these men and women and tell them they are fighting in the sandstorms of Iraq so that their flag can be burned on the street corners of America?

General Norman Schwarzkopf spoke for our warriors when he said, "I regard the legal protection of our flag as an absolute necessity and a matter of critical importance to our nation."

There are great and gifted Americans on both sides of this issue and learned opinions, but only one fact: The American people want their right to protect the flag returned.

The Constitution is too important to be left to the courts and so is the flag. They both belong to the people and it's time to let the people decide, through the process of ratification, if their flag is worthy of protection.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON RESOLUTION OF INTENTION TO ANNEX TERRITORY TO AN EXISTING COMMUNITY FACILITIES DISTRICT AND TO LEVY A SPECIAL TAX TO PAY FOR CERTAIN PUBLIC FACILITIES

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the West Sacramento City Council on June 7, 2006, adopted its Resolution No. 06-58, in which it declared its intention to annex territory to an existing community facilities district ("CFD N"), and to levy a special tax to pay for certain services, all pursuant to the provisions of the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act of 1982, Chapter 2.5, Part 1, Division 2, Title 5 of the California Government Code and Chapter 3.32 of the City Municipal Code. The resolution describes the territory to be annexed, specifies the types of facilities to be financed, and describes the rate and method of apportionment of the proposed special tax. No increase in the tax levied in the existing CFD N is proposed. The City will tax all interests in property that may be taxed under the Act. The financed facilities will be used in accordance with the CFD N Services Report. For further details, the resolution is available at the office of the City Clerk, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, California.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that the City Council has fixed Wednesday, July 12, 2006, at the hour of 7:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, at the City Council Chambers, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, California, as the time and place when and where the City Council will hold a public hearing to consider the establishment of the district. At the hearing, the testimony of all interested persons or taxpayers for or against the annexation of the territory, the extent of the district, or the furnishing of the specified services will be heard.

If 50% or more of the registered voters, or six registered voters (whichever is more), residing within the existing CFD N, or if 50% or more of the registered voters, or six registered voters (whichever is more), residing within the territory proposed to be annexed, or if the owners of 1/2 or more of the area of land included in the existing CFD N or the owners of 1/2 or more of the land proposed to be annexed and, in each case, not exempt from the special tax, file written protests against the annexation and the protests are not withdrawn so as to reduce the value of the protests to less than a majority, the annexation and the tax levy shall not be considered for a period of one year from the date of the decision of the City Council after the hearing. If the majority of the landowners protest only against a specific type of service or a specified tax, then that type of service or tax shall be precluded.

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that if, at the conclusion of the public hearing, the City Council determines to annex the territory, the City Council will order an election to be held by the qualified electors of the territory proposed to be annexed by mailed ballot, with each such elector having one vote for each acre or portion of an acre owned by the elector, on the questions of annexing the territory and levying the special tax.

Measure K Report

March 31, 2006

Measures J & K

In November 2002, West Sacramento voters approved two measures that established a sales tax override that was intended to supplement the city's general fund for general government purposes. Measure J was an advisory measure that described the City Council's conceptual plan on how the money should be spent, and Measure K was the measure that actually implemented the sales tax override. The initial amount generated from the ½% override was estimated to be $5 million annually. Now it appears that we will not reach this level of the revenue until IKEA has been open for a year or so.

How Measure K Works

Measure K specified that the ½% override would consist of ¼% that would cease after ten years, and ¼% that would continue indefinitely. The funds generated by the override have been divided into two categories: a base allocation and a capital allocation. The base allocation is funded with the ongoing ¼%, and the capital allocation is funded with the ¼% that will cease after ten years. The base allocation is to be used for ongoing programs and activities; the capital allocation is to be used for specific projects. In the case of capital allocation, bonding and borrowing against the projected annual cash flow has enabled a larger amount of funding to be available at the onset of the ten-year period.

This Report

Measure K also included the requirement that "the citizens shall receive annually a published report of revenues and disbursements following a public hearing." A public hearing for that purpose was held on May 17, 2006. The purpose of this report is to comply with publishing requirement and to present the appropriations and projects that have resulted from Measure K, with reference to the direction of the advisory measure.

Overview

In the information presented below, Allocation refers to the distribution of Measure K funds pursuant to Measure J, along with revenues from other sources, while Actual refers to actual disbursement of those funds.

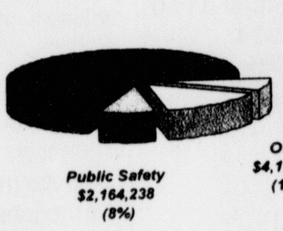

As the graph for Allocations below shows, Public Safety receives 8% of the revenue for programs, including additional police and fire personnel, new equipment and facility repairs.

Transportation programs, receiving 70% of the revenue, include expanded street sweeping and minor street maintenance. Major projects in this category include sidewalk repair, traffic safety upgrades, bike lane striping and an accelerated program for resurfacing of many residential streets.

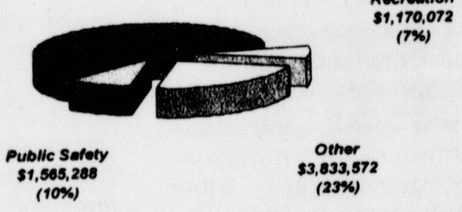

Parks and Recreation, with 7% of the revenue, offers expanded after-school and childcare programs, and provides for certain facilities at various community sites, including restrooms, playgrounds and irrigation improvements in parks, skate park, and fishing dock improvements.

Finally, the Other category, accumulating miscellaneous programs and projects, receives the remaining 15% of the revenue. In this category are funds for: the water service charge reduction; purchase of property for the expanded Turner Library; a bus and future light-rail center; and seed money for a new senior center.

Measure K Summary - Allocation ($27.6m)

Measure K Summary - Actual ($16.4m)

REVENUE AND DISBURSEMENTS THROUGH THE PERIOD ENDING MARCH 31, 2006

	Allocation	Actual Expense
REVENUES
Measure K Sales Tax and Other Revenues		13,806,729
EXPENDITURES
PUBLIC SAFETY
Base
Investigations - Personnel Costs, Safety Equipment, Vehicles & Equipment	822,511	670,128
Allocation - Expands police and code enforcement resources dedicated to the West Capitol Avenue corridor. Funds will be spent on specialized training, supplies and equipment.
Actual Expense - Measure K moneys allotted to the Police Department were used to fund two police officer positions, a code enforcement officer and a vehicle. These positions became the West Capitol Avenue Impact Team. The team worked under a community policing philosophy, using partnerships with public and private entities to solve identified community issues and priorities.
Their efforts yielded substantial results as measured by the decrease in police calls for service in the primary focus area of West Capitol Avenue. Police calls for disorderly conduct and calls for fights fell by 29%. Measuring the combined statistics on calls for trespassing, theft, suspicious circumstances, fights, and disorderly conduct, the Police Department saw a decrease of 26% in calls for service.
The team targeted the illegal use of shopping carts to reduce the number of abandoned shopping carts throughout the city, removed problem payphones that were being used for drug and prostitution activity, and addressed bus stops identified by local business owners and citizens as bases of operation for criminal activity and antisocial behaviors.
The team worked with city and community stakeholders to clean up transient camps along Merkley, SR 275, Old River Road near the Raley Field, and north to The Rivers development project. Collaborative teams were developed with Parks and Recreation, RD 900, and the County Probation Department. The Impact Team provided law enforcement support and assistance, directing these resources to target areas where the overgrowth of vegetation was concealing camping, drug use and sales, and prostitution activity.
The Impact Team coordinated weekly prostitution stings, utilizing outside agency assistance and the media to abate the chronic problem of prostitution activity in the revitalization area on West Capitol Avenue.
The Impact Team's focus on the environmental issues propagating criminal activity along West Capitol Avenue soon generated into a number of investigations related to the business practices of a number of city motel owners and operators. These investigations revealed a direct link between the motels and the prostitution, drug use and sales activity prevalent in the area. The Impact Team used criminal and civil action to address these issues.
Professional Services, Emergency Services Personnel Costs, Safety Clothing & Training	548,315	495,025
Allocation - Enhances fire operations by staffing a truck with a firefighter for two of three shifts.
Actual Expense - Salaries, benefits, safety clothing, and training for two firefighters that have been assigned to the truck on two of the three shifts. However, with current budget allocations, the truck is now fully staffed and is stationed at Station 43 and runs as a company and responds to structure fires, vehicle accidents, goes on business inspections, etc.
Capital
Data Communication & Telephone Equipment	168,950	149,624
Allocation - Upgrades data communication and telephone equipment in police station for compatibility with City Hall.
Actual Expense - Project completed as described.
Structures & Improvements, Equipment - Other	642,462	250,511
Allocation - Funding for rehabilitation of four fire stations, including reroofing, fixing garage doors and exhaust venting, and painting.

After-School Childcare Program	564,688	529,771
Allocation/Actual Expense - Funding to expand various existing community service programs, as follows:
Kid Zone (formerly The After School Adventure - TAA)
• A program that provides after-school childcare at local elementary school sites from school dismissal until 5:30 p.m. • This service allows parents who work weekdays to enroll their child/children in a supervised program. • The program provides time for homework, as well as organized play, games, arts and crafts, sports activities, and a healthy snack.
Program Augmentation
• Measure K has provided funding for expansion of the Kid Zone After-School Program that serves elementary children at local elementary schools Monday Friday, school dismissal to 5:30 p.m. Each month, 176 children have benefited from this Measure K program. • In the past, the program was only first three weeks of the month, and not held the months of September, December and June. Partial school months did not include program as there was just not enough funding. Measure K funding made it possible to offer Kid Zone every week of the month, every month of the year. Every day that school is in session, Kid Zone is in session at the original three Kid Zone sites: Elkhorn, Westfield and Westmore Oaks. • Funding provides daily nutritious snack, program materials, arts and crafts supplies, sports equipment, books, staff labor, staff uniforms, staff training and certifications, program trips and special events, buses, flyers and monthly parent calendars, etc.
Program Expansion
• Funding allowed the Kid Zone program to open at Evergreen and Alyce Norman/Bryte. The latter is held at Alyce Norman School, but serves both Alyce Norman and Bryte students, and is a collaboration between our program and the principals of the two schools.
Scholarships
• Measure K funds scholarships to children attending all of the five Kid Zone sites: Alyce Norman/Bryte, Elkhorn, Evergreen, Westfield and Westmore Oaks. Currently the program only costs a $2.00 per day, and scholarships only pay $1.00 per day. Scholarships will be free next year.
K.I.D.S. (Kids Involved During Summer)
• A summer neighborhood recreation day-camp for children, ages 5 to 12. • This service allows parents who work weekdays to enroll their child/children in a supervised program. • The program provides organized play, games, arts and crafts, field trips, sports activities, and a healthy snack.
Program Augmentation
• Measure K has provided funding for expansion of K.I.D.S. Summer Camp. A six-week camp offered during summer vacation at local parks and elementary school sites (eight sites total) from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Last summer 205 children benefited from this Measure K funded program.
• Funding has allowed us to increase program supplies, activities, and special events offered at the K.I.D.S. camp sites. It has allowed us to tape the annual K.I.D.S talent show and broadcast it on our local access cable. Some of the fun new activities offered include a bowling trip, as well as trips to the Imax Theater and State Capitol.
Program Expansion
• Funding has allowed us to add new sites at Southport Gateway Park and Bridgeway Island Park. The latter has been highly successful, and is one of the two highest attended sites. Attendance reaches 70 children on some days. As with existing K.I.D.S. camp sites, funding provides program materials, arts and crafts, sports equipment, food and refreshments for the children, staff labor, staff uniforms, staff training and certifications, program trips and special events, buses, flyers and parent calendars, banners, water toys to stay cool in the summer, and participant shirts.
Teen Camp
• A program that provides middle school students a summer of fun recreational activities at the Club West Teen Center for six weeks. The program operates Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. • This service allows parents who work weekdays to enroll their middle-school-age child/children in a supervised program. • The program provides organized play, games, arts and crafts, sports activities, trips, and healthy snacks and lunch.
Program Implementation
Measure K funding has enabled the Parks & Recreation Department to develop this new program for up to 40 students in middle school (grades 7 and 8). Teens participate in exciting activities and trips. These activities include: Family Fun Day, horseback riding, a trip to San Francisco, bowling, swimming, laser tag, Marine World, Golf Land Sunsplash, a Monarchs game, and a River Cats game. As part of the registration fee, lunch is provided daily. Funding provides program materials, arts and crafts supplies, sports equipment, Family Fun Day game and inflatable rentals, food and refreshments for teens, staff labor, staff uniforms, staff training and certifications, program trips and special events, buses, flyers and parent calendars, and participant shirts.

New Remedy For Vascular Pain®

(NAPS)—It can strike you while you're walking—a distinct pain or cramping in your calf. You stop for a few moments and the pain goes away. You continue on and the pain comes back. You chalk it up to arthritis or getting older, but medical experts agree that it needs to get checked out. It could be Peripheral Arterial Disease (PAD), a serious condition that afflicts 14-18 million Americans.

Similar to blocked blood vessels in the heart or brain that lead to heart disease or a stroke, blockages that occur in the legs, from atherosclerotic plaque left untreated, can be deadly. "PAD is vastly underappreciated, despite its alarming mortality rates," said Isaac Eliaz, M.D. "Fortunately, it is treatable."

Recently, a meta-analysis of 19 published studies and clinical trials of a Tibetan herbal product called Padma Basic® concluded that the preparation is safe and effective at providing significant relief for PAD. Current FDA approved drugs have shown some limited benefit to treating PAD, but often the side effects make such treatments undesirable.

"This is excellent news for PAD patients and their physicians," said Mark Blumenthal, Founder and Executive Director of the nonprofit American Botanical Council.

Padma Basic® is available online from www.econugenics.com or by calling (800) 308-5518.

Los Rios Community College District

Mosquitoes and West Nile Virus.

Are you prepared?

Mosquitoes need water to exist.

District employees are aggressively addressing mosquito and vector management issues within our community by inspecting and treating mosquito development sites such as un-maintained swimming pools, rice fields and wetlands. In doing so, we employ the principles of integrated pest management, including surveillance, treatment and educating the public. District staff are trained and certified by the California Department of Health Services to perform biological control (the proper stocking of mosquitofish) and chemical control (the use of Environmental Protection Agency-registered products) to further manage mosquito populations.

But we can't do this alone. We need your help! Urban water management is extremely critical this time of the year. Be sure to empty items that can collect water such as buckets, flower pots, wheelbarrows and other containers. Proper drainage of these commonplace items at least once a week will prevent mosquitoes from breeding on your property. Running filters on pools and spas will also prevent mosquito populations from multiplying in these water sources. Remember to wear a good repellent when outdoors while mosquitoes are most active.

In the event that mosquito populations pose a health threat or become a significant public nuisance, the District can and will readily respond by implementing the District's Mosquito and Mosquito-borne Disease Management Plan. As part of the District's plan, the District will administer Ultra Low Volume (ULV) treatments by using truck-mounted foggers or aircrafts in and around areas where virus activity has been detected. Each fogging unit's output is calibrated to ensure the correct amount of product is applied for each treatment area. The District's primary goal is to protect public health and welfare by managing mosquito populations so that they do not present a significant health risk to our community.

This year, our ongoing surveillance program has detected West Nile virus activity in Sacramento County through three dead birds that tested positive for the virus. If you see a bird, particularly a crow or magpie, that is showing obvious signs of trauma or has been dead for less than 24 hours, please call 1-877-WNV-BIRD (1-877-968-2473) and report it.

If you have any questions regarding our services, please call us at 1-800-429-1022. We are here to serve you!

Together we can ensure a safe, healthy environment for all.

Fight the Bite Checklist

- ☑ DRAIN any standing water that may produce mosquitoes.
- ☑ DAWN and DUSK are times to avoid. These are the times when mosquitoes are most active.
- ☑ DRESS appropriately by wearing long sleeves and pants when outdoors.
- ☑ DEFEND yourself against mosquitoes by using an effective insect repellent, such as DEET, Picaridin or Oil of Lemon Eucalyptus. Make sure you follow label directions!
- ☑ DOOR and window screens should be in good working condition. This will prevent mosquitoes from entering your home.
- ☑ DISTRICT personnel are available to address any mosquito problem you may be experiencing by calling 1-800-429-1022 or visit us online at FIGHTtheBITE.net.
